of every appliance for retaining or retaining cleanliness of person, and the means next morning of cooking a breakfast if a lodger should desire to do so. It will be conducted on the latest principles of comfort, good discipline, and attention to hygienic requirements; and if it is not liberally extended it will be because those for whose accommodation it was established are lost to all sense of decency and comfort. The most cursory glance at the evidence given by the Inspector Sexton in the Water Police Court during the last few weeks will justify these remarks. Here are some extracts referring to different places examined by him:—
 "Very tidy;—" "place examined is lost to the public, and freely used;" "lodging for women, &c., night, 14 beds in a garret, and in four little rooms on the ground floor, premises very dirty and stuffy;" "yard covered with desecrated vegetable matter, &c.," "outhouses very dilapidated, and in a disgusting state, offensive matter, &c.," "small yard, where a cow is kept, yard full of ill-smelling pools and heaps of manure;" "beds in a very bad condition, crowded together;" "no proper appliances." The last might be extended much further, and even it, in certain numerous details are omitted, which those of our readers who cannot imagine but better remain in ignorance of. This is a state of things which would shock a savage—one which should certainly not be perpetuated, and which never should have existed here; and the Model Lodging-house removes the reproach which, had it not been in existence, might fairly have been cast upon us—that while we deprive a certain helpless class of the community of the foul styes in which they had been used to lodge, we stretched out no hand to help them to something better.

Mr. LACKEY's speech at Cobar gives much information to the colony at large. It is perhaps difficult to show any good cause for keeping so much useful information so carefully bottled up for so long a time, and eventually disclosing it and the applause at a public dinner. But Ministers know their own business best, and as long as public works are pushed ahead with vigour and discretion, it is not a matter of much concern when or where they are talked about.

With reference to the epidemic that is the prime of a large bonus to the contractors for the Dubbo and Nyngan railway, and the condition that the line is completed to the Warrego River, 64 miles from Dubbo, by the 1st February next. This sort of thing may at a first glance appear as a somewhat dangerous situation, but a little attentive study will show that it is simply a prior paid for additional advantages secured by a additional or more strenuous work. Due caution must be used that the advantages gained are an equivalent for the bonus which is their price, but not more than should be the cost of concluding of any ordinary bargain. It is highly probable that the country will make a very good bargain by the few months' purchase of these 64 miles of line. They will be enabled to do good work in the current year to secure the carrying of the wool clip of the adjacent country, by which on all future extensions of the great trunk lines the bulk of the year's revenue must be earned. Had the opening been delayed until the termination of the contract time, the best part of a year's revenue might have been lost.

Mr. LACKEY's purchase might have been made had we not the exact amount which it is proposed to pay the contractors in compensation for their increased efforts; and, when it was considered advisable to say that Mr. Russell Barlow had contributed £50,000, it is difficult to conceive any objection to openly stating the amount of the balance to be paid out of the funds of the colony. That, however, may be known by and by. Mr. LACKEY will probably be banqueted at some other towns before he returns to Sydney, and as banquets necessitate speeches and speeches are very rapid without some startling point, that information may come to us in the report of another deliverance made in another remote.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Two grave apprehensions are entertained with regard to Egypt; indeed, to such a climax do affairs appear to have reached that there seems to have been no alternative for the alarm that seized the foreign subjects of the country. Law and order are subverted, and the apparent want of cohesion amongst the Great Powers is strengthening the cause of Arabi Pasha, the "head and front of the uprising," whose mission is to free the country from foreign control. The stories of terror-stricken Europeans continue, and extraordinary efforts are being made to get them away, or shelter them on the men-of-war lying in Egyptian waters. The foreign banking institutions and the business places of the Europeans have been closed in consequence of the hostile attitude of the native inhabitants. The complexity of the situation is increased by the doubtful attitude of Russia, Germany, Austria, and the still more doubtful intentions of Turkey. The action of the three first-named Powers, in advising Prince Tewfik to entrust a creature of Arabi Pasha with the formation of a new Egyptian Ministry, and the action of Dervish Pasha—who was specially commissioned to inquire into the causes of the discontent, and the best means for removing them—in complaining of the presence of foreign debts in Egyptian waters, may be capable of a better explanation than can be deduced from our cables, which have certainly been somewhat conflicting of late. It looks somewhat strange, however, that three Powers who hitherto have taken the least active part in efforts to restore the government of Egypt to its normal condition, should have advised the Khedive in favour of the revolutionary party. It is not strange, perhaps, that the Khedive should accept the proffered advice, at a time when English and French debts are of Alexandria, ready to support his authority, and while the Turkish fleet is pursuing its labours in that city; for Prince Tewfik "never thinks of thinking for himself." It is difficult now to trace out the situation in its labyrinth of intrigues and conflict of interests. Matters are aggravated by the obstinacy of the Tufts, who persistently refuse to sanction a European conference, and who, up to the present, as far as is known, has taken no step to comply with the Khedive's request for troops. The Sultan is rather betraying the good character Mr. Gladstone gave him in the House of Commons the other evening when he said his Imperial Highness was acting in complete harmony with the other Powers. In view of the grave aspect of affairs, England is making every preparation for the worst.

French affairs seem to equally absorb the attention of the Imperial Parliament and the vigilance of the police. The Bill for the repression of Crime in that unhappy country is being pushed through the House of Commons with all possible despatch, and seven clauses have been passed up to the present time. A large Fenian armoury, comprising 100,000 rounds of ammunition, and an enormous number of Sniders, revolvers, and bayonets, evidently intended for conveyance to Ireland, have been seized at Clerkenwell, the same quarter of the city in which about the year 1850 a disastrous attempt was made by the brotherhood to blow up the gasworks.

Two items of interest to Londoners appear amongst this morning's cable despatches. One is that Largan defeated Pearce in the sculling race by three lengths. Pearce is the Sydney champion who accompanied Laycock to England about four months back. The other item announces that Hanlan has abandoned the match with Ross.

The Cuzco (s.), which left Melbourne on May 2, with over 4000 carcasses of mutton, arrived at Plymouth on the 18th instant. Reuter's telegram states that the refrigerating machinery is working well, and that the condition of the meat is believed to be excellent.

With reference to a paragraph in our issue of Saturday, intimating the difficulties that had occurred in connection with the extension of the tramways to the Circular Quay to connect the eastern and western systems, the following communication, received by Sir John Robertson from his Excellency the Governor, contains some information which will be read with interest:—June 15, 1852. Dear Sir John.—I have been indirectly informed that some difficulties present themselves to carrying the tramway to Circular Quay, owing, in great part, to the narrowness of the street below the Treasury, and that it would greatly facilitate the operation if the railing now separating the grounds of Government House could be moved back some 30 or 40 feet crossing the street below the Treasury and re-entering the street at the corner of certain stores. Being desirous of contributing in any way to carrying out any plan which concerns the welfare and convenience of the public, I take the initiative in stating that should the strip of Government House grounds, not exceeding 30 or 40 feet in width be required, I shall be ready to consent to it on certain conditions, which can be agreed upon when the decision is taken. Believe me yours truly, Augustus Lutze, Hon. Sir John Robertson, K.C.M.G."

The difficulty of taking the tramway to the Circular Quay having been thus in a measure removed, the question of the route will be again considered when the Secretary for Public Works returns to town. There are some extracts referring to different places examined by him:—
 "Very tidy premises;—" "place examined is lost to the public, and offensive smells everywhere;—" "very dirty cockpit;—" "pit closet empties itself into the sewer;—" "abominable smells, outhouses very dilapidated, and in a disgusting state, offensive matter, &c.," "small yard, where a cow is kept, yard full of ill-smelling pools and heaps of manure;" "beds in a very bad condition, crowded together;" "no proper appliances."

The small number have been determined on to enable inquiry as to the width of the neighbourhood and as to whether or not other names may be suggested.

With reference to the epidemic that recently broke out in the family of Mr. Peat, of Peat'shurst, near the Goulburn River, about 15 miles from Sydney, we learn that the Government took every possible means to provide the necessary medical attendance and comfort for the sufferers. A report has been received by the Colonial Secretary from Dr. Evans, who was sent out to attend to the sufferers. He states that Elizabeth Peat, aged 15, has succumbed to the disease, and has been buried. The remaining members of the family, although still very unwell, were progressing as well as could be expected.

The two reserves, in the county of Cumberland, parishes of Bulgo and Heather, in the vicinity of the Bulgo-road, another in the parish of Wattlebank, Bulgo, adjoining the National Park, have been placed, for convenience, under the charge of the trustees of that park, but do not become incorporated therein. Reserve at North Head of Port Hacking, Cummamutta Bay, Cronulla Beach, Cangarola, and Bombarra Point, have been brought in a hansom cab when the road was very wet, and the horses, becoming frightened, attempted to jump out of the vehicle and in doing so fell down, and one of the wheels passed over his right leg. The horse then snatched and brought the harness against a kerbstone, smashing it to pieces. The remaining occupant, Edward Williams, however, and the driver of the hansom escaped unharmed. Dowing was taken to the hospital, where it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the lower portion of the tibia, just above the knee.

On Saturday a crowd was attracted in Sussex-street around a man who had fallen to the pavement apparently in a state of exhaustion. A constable came up and finding the man to be attacked by some illness conveyed him to the hospital, where it was found that he was suffering from severe typhoid fever—had indeed, that the medical man who attended him (Dr. Musket) was astonished that one in his state could possibly walk through the streets, as it was supposed he had been doing when he fell. He had, it is said, been residing for the past week in Mrs. Wall's boarding-house, where he was known as "Bill." He was well dressed, and is a respectable man by his appearance.

The meeting held on Saturday afternoon in the Garden Palace, in honour of the memory of the late Garibaldi, was one of the largest and most successful ever held in Sydney. Dr. Marano, the Consul for Italy, occupied the chair. Not only were almost the whole of the Italian residents of this city present, but nearly every other civilised nationality was represented, all anxious to do honour to the name of the great liberator of Italy. Resolutions were moved, and addresses appropriate to the occasion were delivered, a report of which will be found in another column.

A MEETING of carpenters and joiners was held at the Protection Hall on Saturday night, for the purpose of ascertaining what steps should be taken to ensure for members of the trade an increase of wages at the rate of 14d. per hour. Mr. Hugh Nelson occupied the chair. His face and head have been seriously injured, and when found he was in an exhausted state.

A SHOCKING railway accident occurred on Thursday morning at Richmond. Constable Barrett, of the Richmond police force (says the Evening Mail), was run over by the 8.10 special train from Windsor to Melbourne and killed instantly, his body being frightfully mangled by the wheels of the locomotive. It appears that the 8.10 passenger train, which leaves Melbourne and Windsor simultaneously, are accustomed to meet at the Balmain-street crossing. The constable, who had been on duty since 5 o'clock in the morning, was stationed at this point, and just before the accident occurred was standing on the western side of the line, watching the Melbourne train approaching. He stood close up to the rails, being about to cross the line, and immediately on the last carriage having passed he walked on to the other line of rails with the intention of passing over to the other side. The Windsor train, travelling at a rapid rate from the opposite direction, was then close at hand, but the noise of its approach was drowned by that of the train just passed. The unfortunate man, in moving forward, stepped right between the rails immediately in front of the engine, and was struck down without an instant's warning. The train was moving so quickly that the force of the blow from the buffer of the engine carried the body about 30 yards, and then hurled it clear of the line. When picked up it presented a ghastly appearance, the head being severed from the body and shattered into fragments, which were strewn about the spot. The gatekeeper, who was standing on the opposite side of the line at the time, had his attention attracted in the opposite direction by another man, who appeared about to cross the line, otherwise he might have been enabled to warn Constable Barrett of his danger. As it was he turned round and tried to catch a glimpse of the victim's face right under the wheel of the engine. The body was then carried to the morgue, where an inquest will be held. Constable Barrett, who is married and leaves a wife and three children, had been a member of the metropolitan police for about seven years, four of which were spent in the Richmond district.

A PRACTICAL and interesting account of the floating of the steamship Llanelli, appears in our shipping columns. A few weeks since this vessel, one of the A. S. N. Co.'s fleet, left us on her way to King's Bay, and was regarded as lost; but it will be seen that Captain Knight's prompt and determined efforts to float her have been attended with success. Her was admirably assisted in the work by Mr. M'Phee.

A CHINAMAN who had it would appear from his statement, been the subject of a most brutal attack, was found on Saturday by Constable Hibben in a hut at Alexandria, which had for some time previously been unoccupied. The Chinaman states that he had been attacked by a man, who was afterwards identified by him. His face and head have been seriously injured, and when found he was in an exhausted state.

The Evening Standard of April 29 has the following paragraph:—"Our readers will be surprised and interested to learn that stone for monumental and building purposes is now being brought from our far distant colony of New South Wales to this country. The first revenue alone will be £70,000 per annum, and a few years ago, under the old low tariff, there was little more than £2,000 per annum. For the current year the Finance Minister estimates a Customs revenue of £4,100,000, and the total Federal revenue is put at £6,312,000; it appears that the tariff on imports is the chief source of income. This is only a mark of weak financial position, because any considerable relaxation in the yield of Customs at once plunges the Government into difficulties. But the Minister is probably safe for the year in estimating as he has done, as there is such an influx of new population in the north-west that it may compensate for any diminution in trade which may occur."

We learn from the Singapore Daily Times of April 29 that Baron Miltchou-Maclay is sending the part of his collection, left by him at Singapore in 1878 in the care of his friend, the late Hon. H. A. K. Whampson, to Sydney, where he has decided, after his return from Europe in a year's time, to make ready for publication his numerous manuscripts.

The Newspaper Review of Paris is very severe on the Conservatives for their rapprochement towards the Home Rulers. That journal says:—"With a suppleness bordering upon proddigalit, which would have enhanced their master Benjamin Disraeli, the chief of the Conservative Opposition have gone over into the camp of the Home Rulers in order the better to harass Mr. Gladstone. Such a hasty conversion resembles a juggler's feat, and adds little to the reputation of the party. To Lord Salisbury yesterday over a simple amelioration of the lot of the Irish peasants was a revolution. To-day he presents that resolution to its most bold, he instantly puts it complete and indiscriminate, and subjects it to the expatriation of the landlords. The ceremony was a most imposing one, and the cathedral was crowded, notwithstanding the pouring rain. The sermon was preached by the Bishop of Rochester, and the Minister for War, Mr. Watt, was an excellent weather stone. We are informed that other constituents of it are on the way."

The Hunter River Amateur Turf Club Races took place on the Kals Course to-day. The weather was fine, but cold, a raw wind blowing during most of the day. The attendance numbered about 300, the stand and paddock being fairly patronised. The racing was fair, and on the whole the sport was enjoyable. The following are the results:

HORSES HANDICAP, a sweepstakes of 10s. each, with 10s. added. Seven furlongs. Second horse to receive £2.

Mr. T. McCarthy's & Mr. Stockdale, 5s. 10s., including 10s.

Mr. James Mayo's in Little Nell, 5s. 10s. (D. R. R. B. T. Mr. J. H. Hink's) 2s. 10s., including 2s. 10s.

The betting was even on Little Nell, 2s. to 1 against, and the horse won. The other three starters, who had a little the best of the start, let all the way, and won a good race by half a length. Time, 1 minute 34½ seconds.
